

CAPPING CARBON AND KEEPING UTILITY BILLS AFFORDABLE

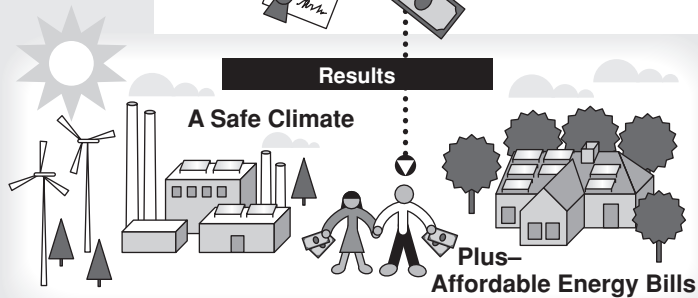

A closer look at the American Clean Energy and Security Act

The cap on carbon pollution under consideration by Congress is designed to keep energy bills affordable. It provides assistance to the local companies that sell power to households and small businesses, and requires them to use that aid to keep rates low.

How the Act works

Results

SOURCE: Environmental Defense Fund, www.edf.org