All right. This took me about 90 minutes to do 108 pages, and it's not going to get easier, I don't think.

I've finally figured out why bulk archive doesn't work 100% ... we get rate limited by Akamai. Bulk archive goes too fast. I resorted to doing the archiving 1-by-1. It's not too slow once you get a rhythm (gonna get you), but tedious since I waited until the page was definitely archived before hitting the next.

The bulk archive missed four files, highlighted in yellow in the attached spreadsheet. I found three of them stuck in the queue for archiving state (so at least that fails gracefully).

<https://www.epa.gov/clean-power-plan/clean-power-plan-resources-communities>

<https://www.epa.gov/clean-power-plan/clean-power-plan-what-epa-doing>

<https://www.epa.gov/clean-power-plan/clean-power-plan-outreach-summary>

(All three are attached.)

Missing: clean-power-plan-and-carbon-pollution-standards-regulatory-actions. I find no evidence of a redirect to some other page (like clean-power-plan-existing-power-plants-regulatory-actions??), but I could be wrong.

What's the best way to get those three files over to archive?

Tomorrow morning, I will archive clean-power-plan. Tomorrow during the day, you'll want to rename the ARCHIVED clean-power-plan back to cleanpowerplan using your Perl script.

No that is not what I mean. In order to successfully run the archive process from the webcms, the "wget" command needs to work and get to the content, and not get redirect to energy independence. So Mike has to rename the real site, long enough for the archive process to get carried out.

How can we keep www.epa.gov/clean-power-plan from getting into search results when Mike renames the existing www.epa.gov/cleanpowerplan website.

Do you mean keep the temporary archive directory from getting into our search results? www.epa.gov/cleanpowerplan is long gone from our search results, and archive is categorically excluded from default search results. I'm assuming that there are no restrictions on what you can find in archive if you do an explicit archive search, right?

As far as archiving, you will move the content to something like archive.epa.gov/epa/clean-power-plan and I will update the links and move it to archive.epa.gov/epa/cleanpowerplan?

I am tied up from 3:30 until 7:00pm but I can easily have this done this evening before indexing runs. If for any reason I cannot complete it, I will make sure the temporary directory is not indexed. But thanks for the consideration on the timing.

I would do this archiving early in the morning and go as fast as I can. Wouldn't that prevent the indexing?

The URL pattern would be "clean-power-plan" if that helps (changed from "cleanpowerplan").

He understands that you will need to temporarily rename it with an obscure appendage or something to make it not caught by the redirect.

He also understands that it will appear on the Web Topics Published list for a bit.

I told him it would not appear in our EPA search results, so Peter what do you need to do to not feed yourself the (new) web area when Mike renames it?

Clean Power Plan Outreach Summary

Proposed Federal Plan and Model Rules for the Clean Power Plan

As part of the comment period on the proposed Federal Plan and Model Rules for the Clean Power Plan, EPA is asking for information and comments from communities, states, tribes and other stakeholders. EPA has held several public hearings throughout the U.S. in different cities to obtain input before the comment period closes on January 21, 2016.

In addition, EPA held a series of teleconferences about the design of the Clean Energy Incentive Program (CEIP). These teleconferences, held in November/December 2015, have offered a variety of interested parties and community members the opportunity to share their ideas about the CEIP. Written comments about the CEIP can also be submitted through December 15, 2015, for those who missed the teleconferences.

Beginning in October 2015, the agency hosted trainings on the proposed Federal Plan and Model Rules and CEIP in Las Vegas, NV for tribes and in Port Arthur, TX for communities. A second community training will be held December 15-16, 2015 in Washington, DC and additional tribal trainings are planned for December 7-8 in Farmington, NM and December 9-10 in Tuba City, AZ. More information about registering for these events is below.

In the coming weeks, EPA regional offices will be connecting with communities about the proposed Federal Plan and Model Rules, including sharing information about the CEIP. These meetings, webinars, and teleconferences continue the Agency's efforts to solicit feedback and comments from communities about these actions that would reduce carbon pollution from existing power plants across the nation.

Clean Power Plan Resources for Communities

This web page provides resources to help inform overburdened communities about the final Clean Power Plan and the proposed Federal Plan Requirements for Greenhouse Gas Emissions from Electric Utility Generating Units Constructed on or Before January 8, 2014; Model Trading Rules (this rulemaking will be henceforth referred to as the proposed federal plan). Additionally, this website provides resources that the EPA is making available to help communities engage with their states as they implement their plans and to assist communities in engaging with the EPA throughout the comment period for the proposed federal plan.

The Clean Power Plan will provide broad benefits to communities across the nation, as its purpose is to reduce greenhouse gases, the most significant driver of climate change. While addressing climate change will provide broad benefits, it is particularly beneficial to low-income communities of color that are already overburdened with pollution and that are more likely to be disproportionately affected by, and less resilient to, the impacts of climate change.

The electricity sector is, and will continue to be, investing more in renewable energy and energy efficiency. It is important to ensure that all communities share in these benefits.

Developing carbon pollution standards under the Clean Air Act

The Clean Air Act lays out distinct approaches for new and existing sources under Section 111: a federal program for new sources and state programs for existing sources. EPA is using its authority under section 111 of the Clean Air Act to issue standards, regulations or guidelines, as appropriate that address carbon pollution from new and existing power plants, including modifications of those plants. This section of the Act establishes a mechanism for controlling air pollution from stationary sources.

Section 111 (b) is the federal program to address new, modified and reconstructed sources by establishing standards.

Section 111 (d) is a state-based program for existing sources. The EPA establishes guidelines. The states then design programs that fit in those guidelines and get the needed reductions.

Overview presentation of Clean Air Act Section 111

The following overview presentation provides a basic understanding of Clean Air Act section 111 and how it will inform the design of the program.

Reducing carbon pollution from the power sector

In the Clean Air Act, Congress recognized that the opportunity to build emissions controls into a source's design is greater for new sources than for existing sources, so it laid out different approaches to set the two types of standards.

On September 20, 2013, EPA proposed carbon pollution standards for power plants built in the future and kicked off the process of outreach with states, stakeholders and the public to establish carbon pollution standards for currently operating power plants.

On June 2, 2014, EPA, under President Obama's Climate Action Plan, proposed a commonsense plan to cut carbon pollution from existing power plants. The Clean Power Plan will maintain an affordable, reliable energy system, while cutting pollution and protecting our health and environment now and for future generations.

On October 28, 2014, EPA issued a supplemental proposal to the Clean Power Plan to address carbon pollution from affected power plants in Indian Country and U.S. territories.

George: per my voice message, we need to start building an updated page for the clean power plan ASAP with the goal of having it go live sometime on Monday.

Below is the outline that we would like. We have the photo we need already from Eric. Some of the links below we already have, others we will have to create. And we are creating content for those links on a parallel track. Therefore you can leave those blank and can add the link in when we have the new documents.

Is there any way we can get a little time put in on this project over the weekend so that we're off on the right foot on Monday morning?

Please call me with any questions or reply to this email. I'll be working all weekend and ready to help make this happen on time.

Thank you very much!

Subject: Website work this weekend

George: per my voice message, we need to start building an updated page for the clean power plan ASAP with the goal of having it go live sometime on Monday.

Below is the outline that we would like. We have the photo we need already from Eric. Some of the links below we already have, others we will have to create. And we are creating content for those links on a parallel track. Therefore you can leave those blank and can add the link in when we have the new documents.

Is there any way we can get a little time put in on this project over the weekend so that we're off on the right foot on Monday morning?

Please call me with any questions or reply to this email. I'll be working all weekend and ready to help make this happen on time.

Thank you very much!

John

Website text:

American Energy Independence]

On March 28, President Donald Trump signed an executive order calling for a rollback of the Clean Power Plan, called the Executive Order on Energy Independence. The event signaled the restoration of the rule of law, cooperative federalism, and sound scientific rulemaking at the Environmental Protection Agency. The process by which this executive order goes into effect is laid out here. [link leading to a plain English explainer blogpost with the steps.]

Read the executive order here. [link leading to page with text of press release-- and full text of executive order.]

In order to comply with the President's action, EPA Administrator Scott Pruitt issued notices of entry into the Federal Registry. You can read those here. [link to announcement text of FR notices]

Administrator Pruitt sent a letter informing governors that EPA does not expect the states to dedicate resources to complying with the rule as it undergoes review. [link to page that includes text explaining the move and the text of the letter.]

This page and other areas of EPA.gov will continue to be updated as progress is made to comply with President Trump's executive order.

Update:

It's been rolled back to what we had on Friday.

There was a communication mixup between 2 folks developing the new page for us.

That said, we'll now explore a Spanish specific 404.

Steve, Harvey and Matt,

As discussed with Nancy, we would like the content at the links below removed and archived as soon as possible.

The removed climate change pages will be replaced with a custom page that will explain why the change is happening, include a link to the January 19, 2017 snapshot of the EPA website, and a link to the press release we'll be putting out.

The clean power plan pages will be redirected to the newly posted energy independence pages.

We appreciate your assistance in this time-sensitive matter.

Please let us know if you have questions.

Thank you

Also the energy independence page is live per Danny and Susan has the URL.

Let me check one thing on the press release issue – I think you are saying that you would put the custom page up –and then when we send you the press release link you will update it.

Will be right back in touch.

Nancy and Matt,

Here are the actions that need to occur.

1. Put in redirects related to CC
2. Re start apache webservers one at a time
3. Test some important CC related URLs

Once the global redirect is in place (1), the CC site will no longer be findable to the public and instead the visitors will go to

<https://www.epa.gov/sites/production/files/signpost/cc.html>

But we have a bit of a circle here—the custom page is supposed to link to the press release, and the press release has to be published for that link to work.

So Nancy do you want us to add the press release link AFTER the press release is live to the custom page?

Steve, Harvey and Matt,

As discussed with Nancy, we would like the content at the links below removed and archived as soon as possible.

The removed climate change pages will be replaced with a custom page that will explain why the change is happening, include a link to the January 19, 2017 snapshot of the EPA website, and a link to the press release we'll be putting out.

The clean power plan pages will be redirected to the newly posted energy independence pages.

We appreciate your assistance in this time-sensitive matter.

Please let us know if you have questions.

Thank you
